Isa 6:9-10 in the New Testament

| lsa 6:9-10                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Our Lord explaining the Parables                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                           | John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Paul                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Matt 13:13-15                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Mark 4:11-12                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Luke 8:10                                                                                                                                 | John 12:37-40                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Acts 28:25-27                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Rom 11:7-8                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 13-14 Therefore speakI to them in parables:because they seeingsee not; and hearingthey hear not, neitherdo they understand. 14And in them is fulfilledthe prophecy ofEsaias, which saith,                                                                     | 11 And he said untothem, Unto you it isgiven to know themystery of thekingdom of God: butunto them that arewithout, all thesethings are done inparables: 12 That | 10 And hesaid, Unto youit is given toknow themysteries ofthe kingdomof God: but toin parables;that | 37 though he had doneso many miracles beforethem, yet they believednot on him: 38 That thesaying of Esaiasmight be fulfilled,Lord, who hath believedour report? and to whomhath the arm of the Lordbeen revealed? [53:1]39 Therefore they couldnot believe, becausethat Esaias said again, | 25 And when theyagreed not amongthemselves, theydeparted, after that Paulhad spoken one word,Well spake the HolyGhost by Esaias theprophet unto our fathers,                                                                                     | 7 Israel hath notobtained thatwhich he seekethfor; but theelection hathobtained it, andthe rest wereblinded, 8According as it iswritten, God hathgiven them thespirit of slumber[29:10], |
| 9 And he said, Go,and tell this people,                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 26 Saying, Go unto this people, and say,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Hear ye indeed, butunderstand not; andsee ye indeed, butperceive not.                                                                                                                          | By hearing ye shallhear, and shall notunderstand; andseeing ye shall see,and shall not perceive:                                                                                                                                                                                     | seeing they may see,and not perceive;and hearing theymay hear, and notunderstand;                                                                                                              | seeing theymight not see,and hearingthey might notunderstand.                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Hearing ye shall hear,and shall notunderstand; and seeingye shall see, and notperceive:                                                                                                                                                                      | eyes that theyshould not see,and ears thatthey should nothear                                                                                                                                              |
| 10 Make the heartof this people fat,and make their earsheavy, and shuttheir eyes; lest theysee with their eyes,and hear with theirears, andunderstand withtheir heart, | 15 For this people'sheart is waxed gross,and their ears are dullof hearing, and theireyes they have closed;lest at any time theyshould see with theireyes, and hear withtheir ears, and shouldunderstand with theirheart, | lest at any time                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                           | 40 He hath blinded theireyes, and hardenedtheir heart; that theyshould not see with theireyes, nor understandwith their heart,                                                                                                                                                                           | 27 For the heart of thispeople is waxed gross,and their ears are dull ofhearing, and their eyeshave they closed; lestthey should see withtheir eyes, and hear withtheir ears, andunderstand with theirheart, |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| and convert, and be healed.                                                                                                                                                                                | and should beconverted, and I shouldheal them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | they should beconverted, and theirsins should beforgiven them.                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                           | and be converted, and I should heal them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | and should beconverted, and I shouldheal them.                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |